  - /s/ and /ʃ/ may be pronounced voiced, but their geminates are always voiceless.
  - /r/, in addition to being trilled, may be pronounced as a tap /ɾ/ or the French/Portuguese uvular R /ʁ/, though when it is at the beginning of a word or geminated, it is always trilled or uvular.
- The glottal stop is optionally silent.
- All voiced stops have fricative allophones when pronounced intervocalically.

Med. high	e		o
Med. low	ɛ		ɔ

Notes:

The medium low vowels are always stressed.

Orthography

This language uses the Latin alphabet except for the letters K and W, and has 9 letters with accent marks:

Aa Áá Bb Cc Çç Dd Ee Éé Èè Ff Gg Hh Ii Íí Jj Ll Mm Nn Oo Óó Òò Pp Qq Rr Ss Tt Uu Úú Üü Vv Xx Yy Zz

- The acute accent marks stress on a vowel.
- The grave accent marks openness and stress on E and O (è is pronounced /ɛ/, ò is pronounced /ɔ/).
- The diaeresis is used in certain digraphs with U (see below).
- The cedilla is used on soft C before A, O, or U.

The alphabet mostly corresponds to the sounds, with these exceptions:

- /ɲ/ is spelled nh.
- /k/ is spelled qu before E or I, and c anywhere else.
- /g/ is spelled gu before E or I, and g anywhere else.
- /kʷ/ is spelled qü before E or I, and qu anywhere else.
- /gʷ/ is spelled gü before E or I, and gu anywhere else.
- /ʔ/ is spelled h.
- /ts/ is spelled c before E or I, ç before any other vowel, and z anywhere else.
- /dz/ is spelled z.
- /t / is spelled ch.
- /dʒ/ is spelled g before E or I, and j anywhere else.
- /ʃ/ is spelled x.
- /j/ is spelled y.
- /ʎ/ is spelled ll.

Grammar

Nouns

Like in most romance languages, nouns decline only for number. There are three noun declensions: First declension nouns end with -a and are mostly feminine, second declension nouns end with -o and are mostly masculine, and third declension nouns end with -e or a consonant and can be masculine and feminine. To form the plural, the following rules apply:

- To form the plural of most nouns, an S is added to the end.
- If a noun ends in -s, -ch, or -x, add -es.
- If a noun ends in -z, change the -z to a -c and add -es.
